

Look at the sentences below. It's a story about Sherlock Holmes, the famous detective, and Dr. Watson, his friend. The sentences are mixed up. Put them in the correct order. You may use a dictionary.

faithful: treu
to deduce: schlussfolgern observation: Beobachtung to ponder: nachdenken potentially: möglicherweise in conjunction to: in Konjunktion zu horological: Zeitmessung betreffend approximately: ungefähr to marvel: bewundern tapestry: Wandteppich scheme: Plan, Anordnung

.....a week's camping holiday in the Lake District.
.....On their last evening, after an excellent meal, a bottle of wine and some cigars,
.....Some hours later, Holmes awoke with a start
.....1.....Sherlock Holmes and Dr Watson had taken time off to enjoy
....."Watson, Watson, look up at the sky
.....and woke his faithful friend up saying:
.....they lay down for the night, and went to sleep.
....."I see millions and millions of stars, Holmes."
....."And what do you deduce from your observation?"
.....Watson pondered for a minute. Then he explained: "Astronomically, it tells me .....and tell me what you see."
.....there are millions of galaxies and potentially billions of planets.
.....asked the great detective.
.....with Saturn in Leo.
.....Astrologically, I observe that Mars is in conjunction .....Horologically, I deduce that the time is approximately
.....and comprehend how very small
.....a quarter past three. Theologically, I marvel at the rich tapestry of creation
.....and insignificant we are in the grand scheme of things. Meteorologically,
.....It tells me that somebody has stolen our tent!"
.....tomorrow. What does it tell you?"
.....then he said: "Watson, you are an idiot.
.....Holmes was silent for a moment,
.....I am pretty certain that we shall have a fine day

