Translate:

Wo wirst du nächste Woche (hin)gehen? ... Where will you go next week?

Wird dein Freund morgen kommen? .................................................................

Ich werde nicht sprechen. ..............................................................................

Wir werden dir schreiben. ................................................................................

Was werden wir morgen Nachmittag tun? .........................................................

Sie werden nicht bleiben. ................................................................................

Willst du mit mir kommen? ..............................................................................

Warum will er kein neues Fahrrad? .................................................................

Wirst du auch sprechen? ....................................................................................

> I'm not going to trust him anymore. ... Ich werde ihm nicht mehr trauen. ....

> You're going to miss the plane. ..............................................................

> It's going to rain in southern Spain. ..............................................................

> Are we going to find it there? ..............................................................

> You're going to catch a cold. ..............................................................

> What are they going to do now? ..............................................................

Change from the will-future into the going-to-future:

John will buy a new car. ... John is going to buy a new car. ............................

They will build a new bridge across the river. ....................................................

I shall have a shower. ......................................................................................

The dog will bite the postman. ..........................................................................

The Airbus will land in half an hour. ...............................................................

The weather will be cold and rainy. ...............................................................
